

SUMMARIZING...

After having received some mails from you and also having a look at the topics posted in the forum and the comments written in it, I have thought that it could be useful to write a summary of everything:

- We are going to use Daniel's website as our main tool to communicate. We will introduce topics there and establish some chat sessions.
- Daniel is the superadministrator of the site and he will give us some rights as teachers (we will be able to publish topics in the forum, include our own photos- I've already send some of them- and articles).
- To introduce our students we will send to Daniel a list of our students with their names, surnames and the nicknames they are going to use. Then , our students will enter Daniel's website by their own and Daniel will just check them with the list and accept them.
- Our students will start the Project writing an introduction of themselves (I will probably add another one in their blog) . We will give them a list with possible topics to talk about and they will decide which are the most interesting ones. Some of the topics proposed by now are:
 1. Local food products.
 2. Arts (local artists)
 3. Sporting events.
 4. Environment.
 5. School
 6. Historical places.
 7. Our town
 8. Power Point about castles.
 9. Places to visit.
 10. Recording a video about their favourite song (visit Laetitia's blog , she has added an example of what she has done with her students last course and it's really interesting!).
 11. Add possible topics that you are interested in.

WHAT DO YOU THINK? IS THERE SOMETHING MISSING? OR CAN WE JUST START INTRODUCING THE FIRST TOPIC IN DANIEL'S WEBSITE (WHO AM I? (for example, or anything you like)) .If we introduce the Topic in the forum we can already start presenting ourselves in it, in this way our students will know something about the teachers who participate in the Project.
