

Kevin Spacey's account of an anecdote in his professional life

	True	False
The wonderful story has to do with an audition.
The story happened at the beginning of the play.
Kevin's agents managed to arrange an audition with Jonathan Miller, the director of the production.
Kevin was going to give a series of lectures in New York.
Kevin was worried about how he would meet Miller.
In the lecture he was sitting next to an elderly man who was extremely interested in what was going on.
Kevin pinched the invitation because the person next to him was tired.
After pinching the invitation, he remained sitting in the same place.
When Kevin approached Dr Miller he told him what he wanted straight away.
Eugene O'Neill was at the reception.
Dr. Miller gave Kevin his card and asked him to get to him directly.
Five months later Kevin had his first audition for the play.
When he first met Jack Lemmon, Kevin was 13.
Jack Lemmon was happy with Kevin's performance.		