If I were a tree

I would give you shade

If I were the wind

I would carry you away

If I were fire

I would warm you up

If I were water

I would cool you down

If I were the sun

I would shine on you

If I were snow

I would blanket you in white
If I were a bird
I would sing you a song

If I were a horse
I would carry you home

But I am none of these things
Still, you found me
For I am you

Elizabeth Csicsery-Rónay.
Self-translation from Hungarian